The Okanagan's Heritage Railway

mountain ranges and connected Midway in the Kootenays to Hope in the Fraser Canyon. Construction began in 1910, the first passenger train arrived in Summerland in May of 1915. It operated for close to 75 years but over time experienced the challenges most railways faced from more and better roads and more easily accessible air travel. The last passenger service ran in 1964 and 1989 saw the last freight train on the original line. As the old "KV" closed down the Kettle Valley Steam Railway started running on a section of the original track commencing in 1995. In 2003, the Kettle Valley Railway Society was fortunate enough to acquire Steam Engine "3716" which has operated since 2005 on a section of the original Kettle Valley Railway.

Riders enjoy a 90-minute round trip journey along six miles (10 km.) of track along the scenic Prairie Valley, through West Summerland and onto the Trout Creek Trestle Bridge -- offering breathtaking views of the Canyon below and Okanagan Lake in the distance. Onboard entertainment including a historical commentary ensures a memorable experience for all ages.

The Kettle Valley Steam Railway is one of the south Okanagan's premier attractions, hosting visitors from all over the world and showcasing a fascinating part of BC's history in the operation of one of the few remaining steam railways in Canada.

The original Kettle Valley Railway, 325 miles long and described as one of the most difficult railway lines ever built, spanned three
